We are a small winery, and grow all the grapes for our wines on our 62 hectare estate on the northern slopes of the Simonsberg mountains.

The Simonsberg separates Stellenbosch from Paarl, and have made some of South Africa's finest wines since the 17th century. Our climate is Mediterranean, with warm summers, mild winters, and significant diurnal temperature variation.

Origin Simonsberg-Paarl
Proprietor/winemaker Kristopher Tillery
Size of vineyard 30 hectares
Soil Primarily decomposed granite
Total annual production 7,000 cases

When establishing Noble Hill we were given keys to every door and gate in a jumbled box. Sorting through the mess, we realized that some of the keys dated to the farm's historic past, and ever since we have placed different keys on each wine label to represent the different characters of the grapes we grow.

Our vineyards are certified sustainable by the Integrated Production of Wine (IPW) system. We allow our wines to express their natural character and terroir through minimal intervention.

Our team is comprised of professionals dedicated to the creation of unique and expressive wines.

There are 900 olive trees growing on Noble Hill. We make a small batch cold-extracted extra-virgin olive oil from Frantoio, Kalamata, Manzanillo, and Mission olives each year.

Our tasting room is located in the heart of the Cape Winelands, a short drive from Franschhoek, Stellenbosch, or Paarl, and 45 km from Cape Town. We are open for wine tasting every day.

Grapes are harvested by hand and picked into shallow lug boxes to retain fresh aromas during crushing. Bunches are sorted by hand for consistency and quality before entering the winery.
